2. At the time subject's initial appointment action (SF--52) was prepared, he was on active duty with the Navy, which would have borne the cost of his travel to the point of his separation from service. However, during the period required to obtain security clearance for his appointment with CIA, [redacted] returned to duty as a civilian employee with his former agency, Department of The Interior, Reclamation Division, [redacted] thus becoming entitled to payment of his travel expenses by CIA.
